STYLE COMES NATURALLY

CAMILLA FRANKS

Camilla for Austral Bricks

For this first collection, Camilla drew inspiration from a country that's been building homes with clay and brick in a brilliant palette for thousands of years: Mexico.

Colonial architecture, stunning Aztec temples and pyramids, and the unforgettable colour and imagery of legendary artist Frida Kahlo all made their way into the five colours that make up this stunning first collection by Camilla for Austral Bricks.

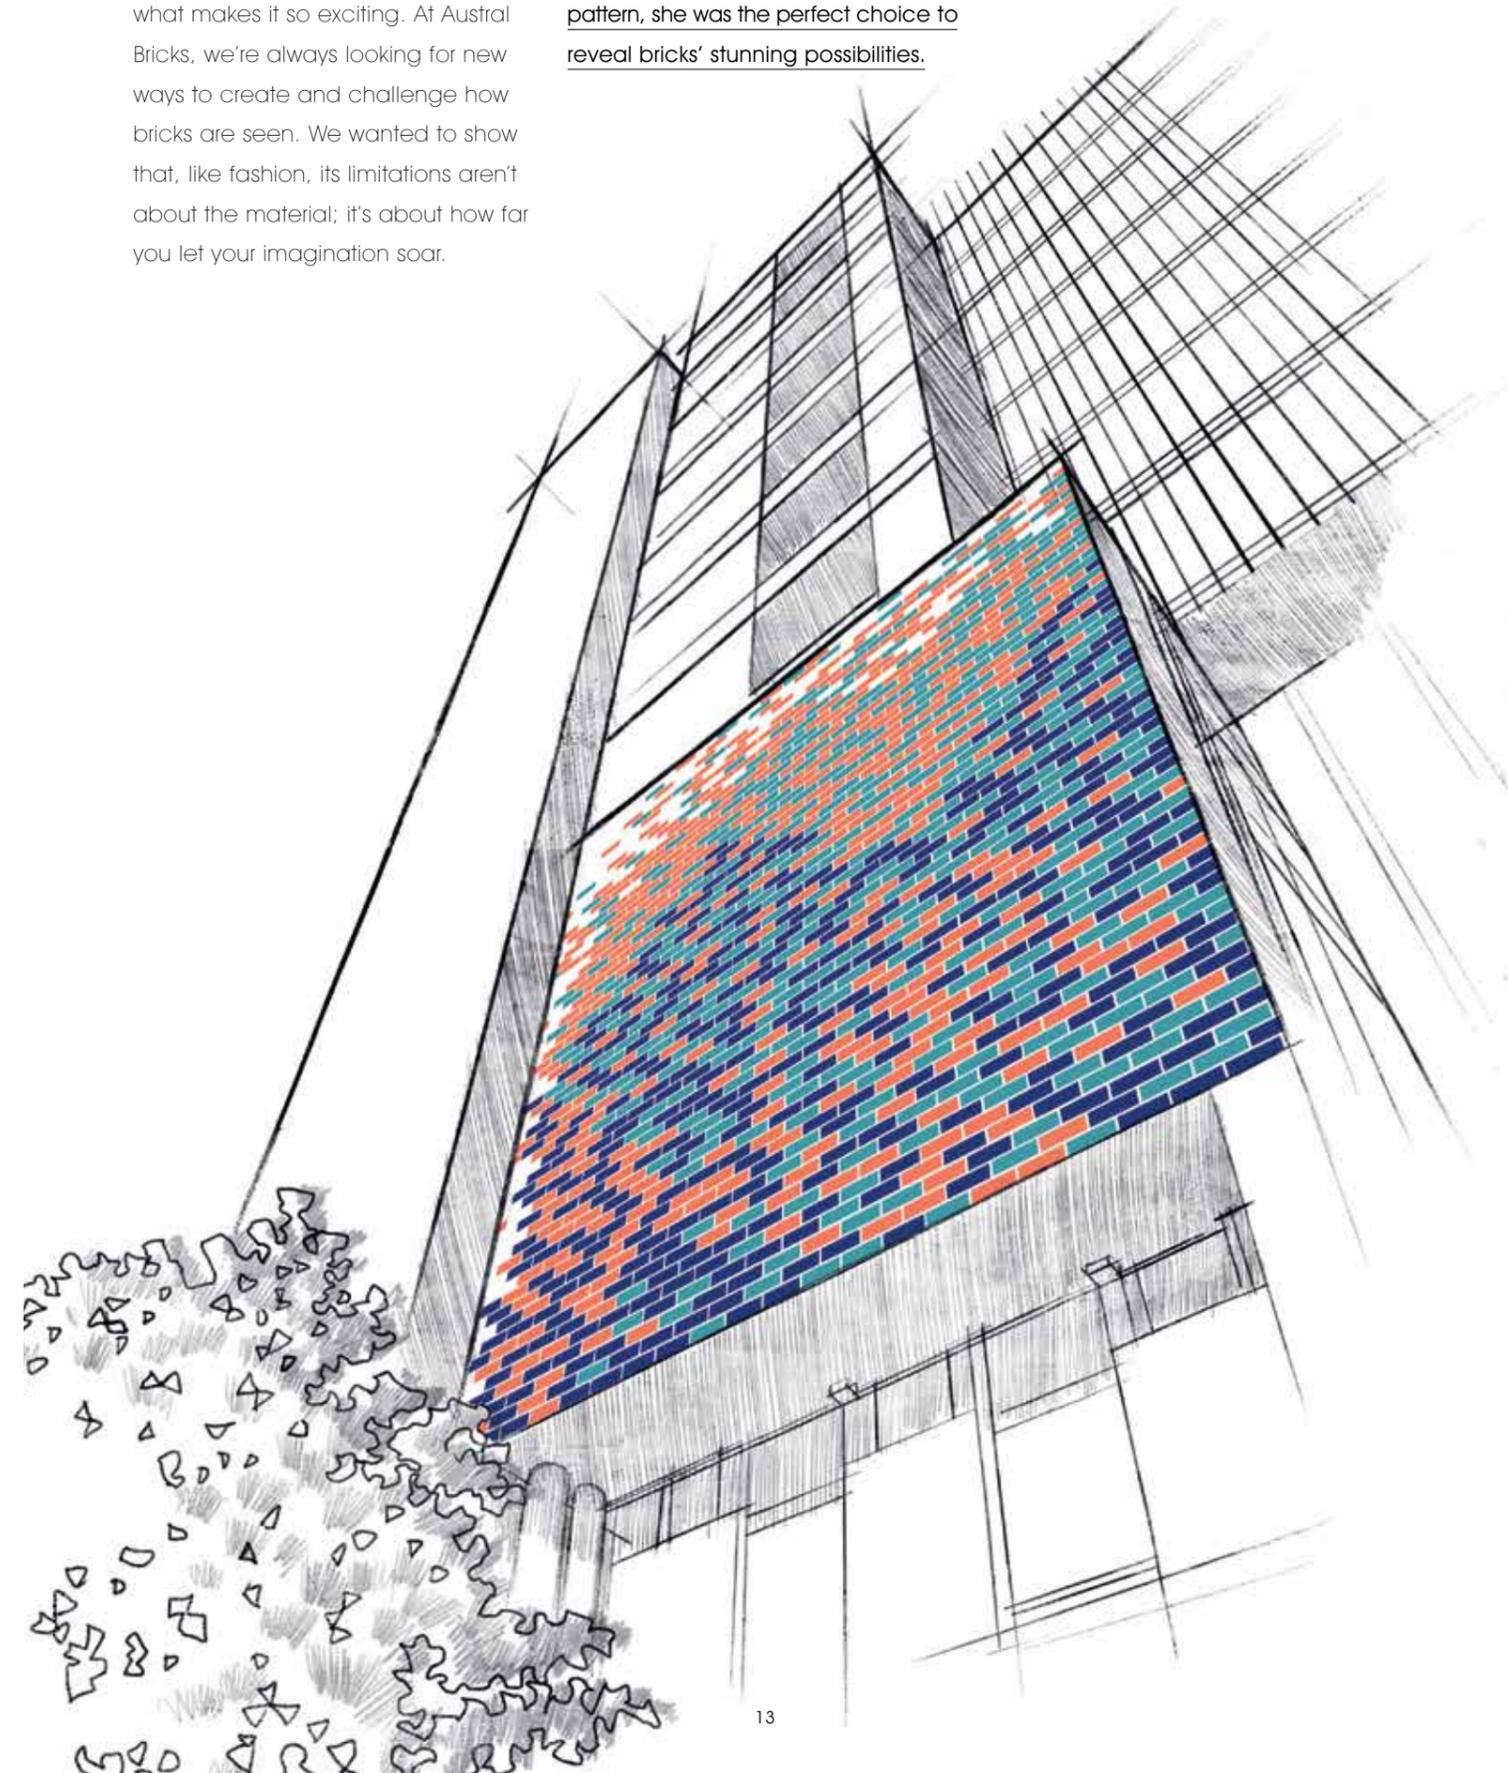

Glazed double headers are available separately. Bullnose and cant bricks are available on request.

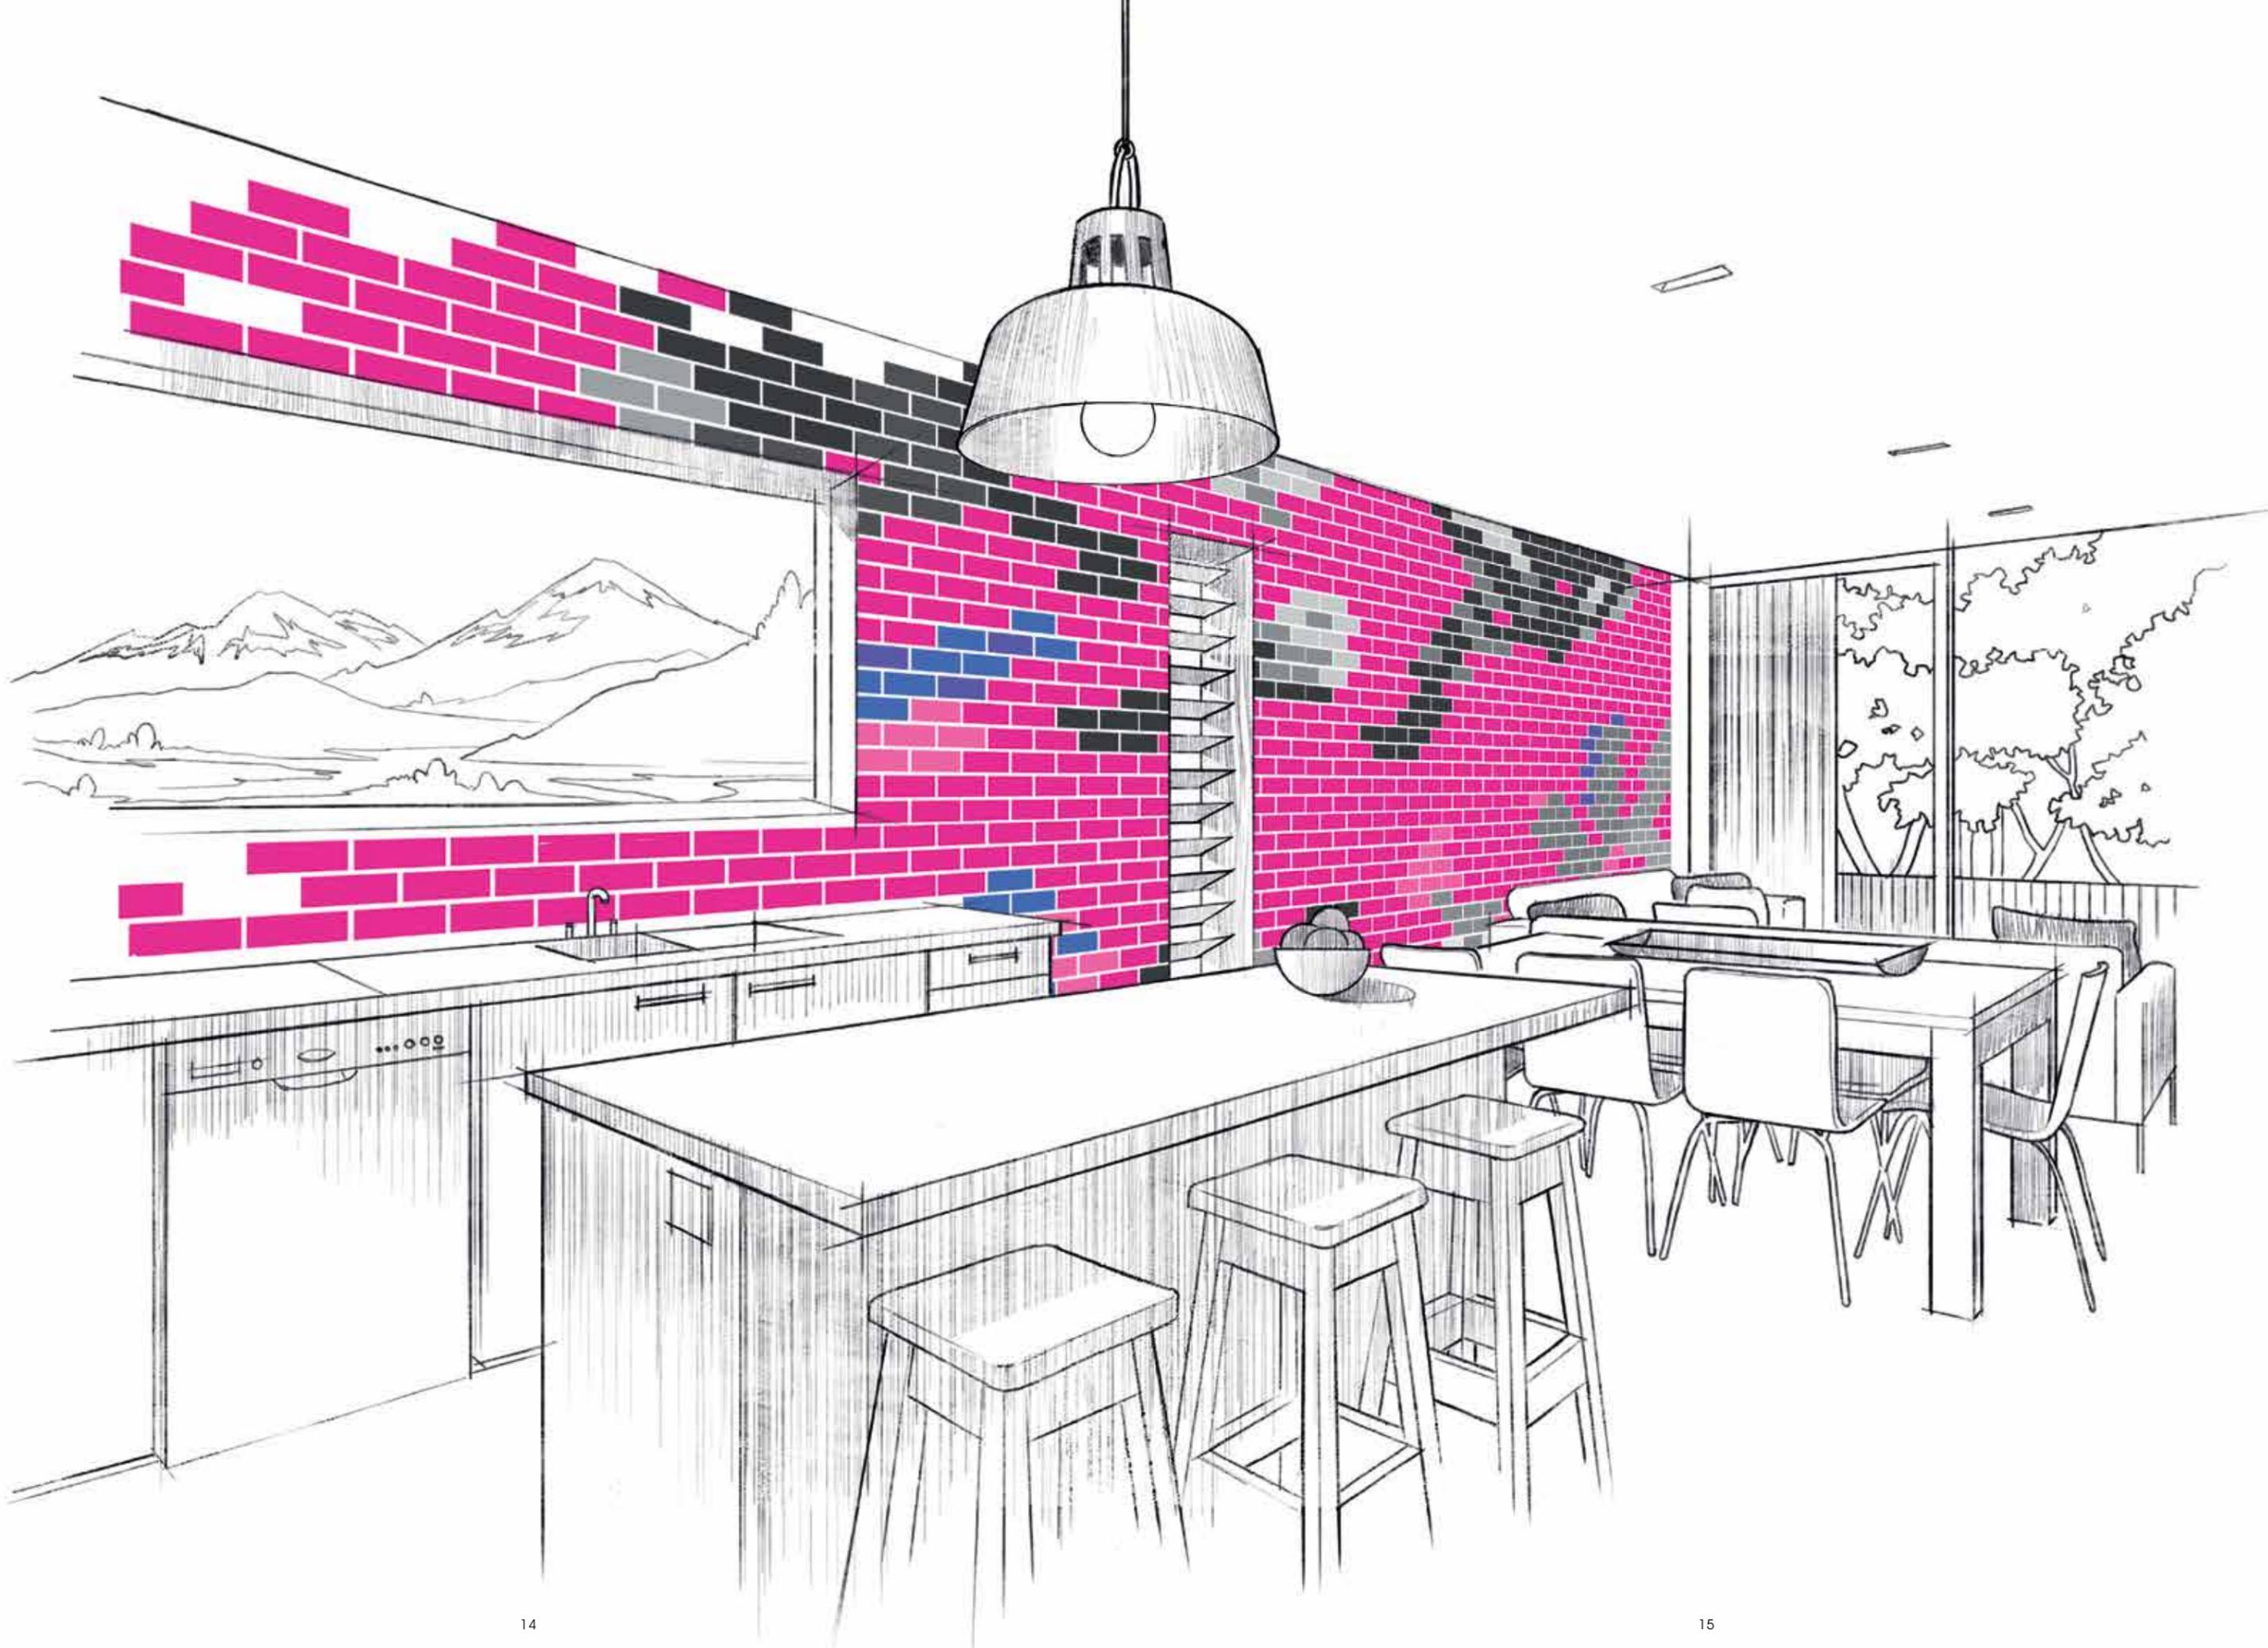

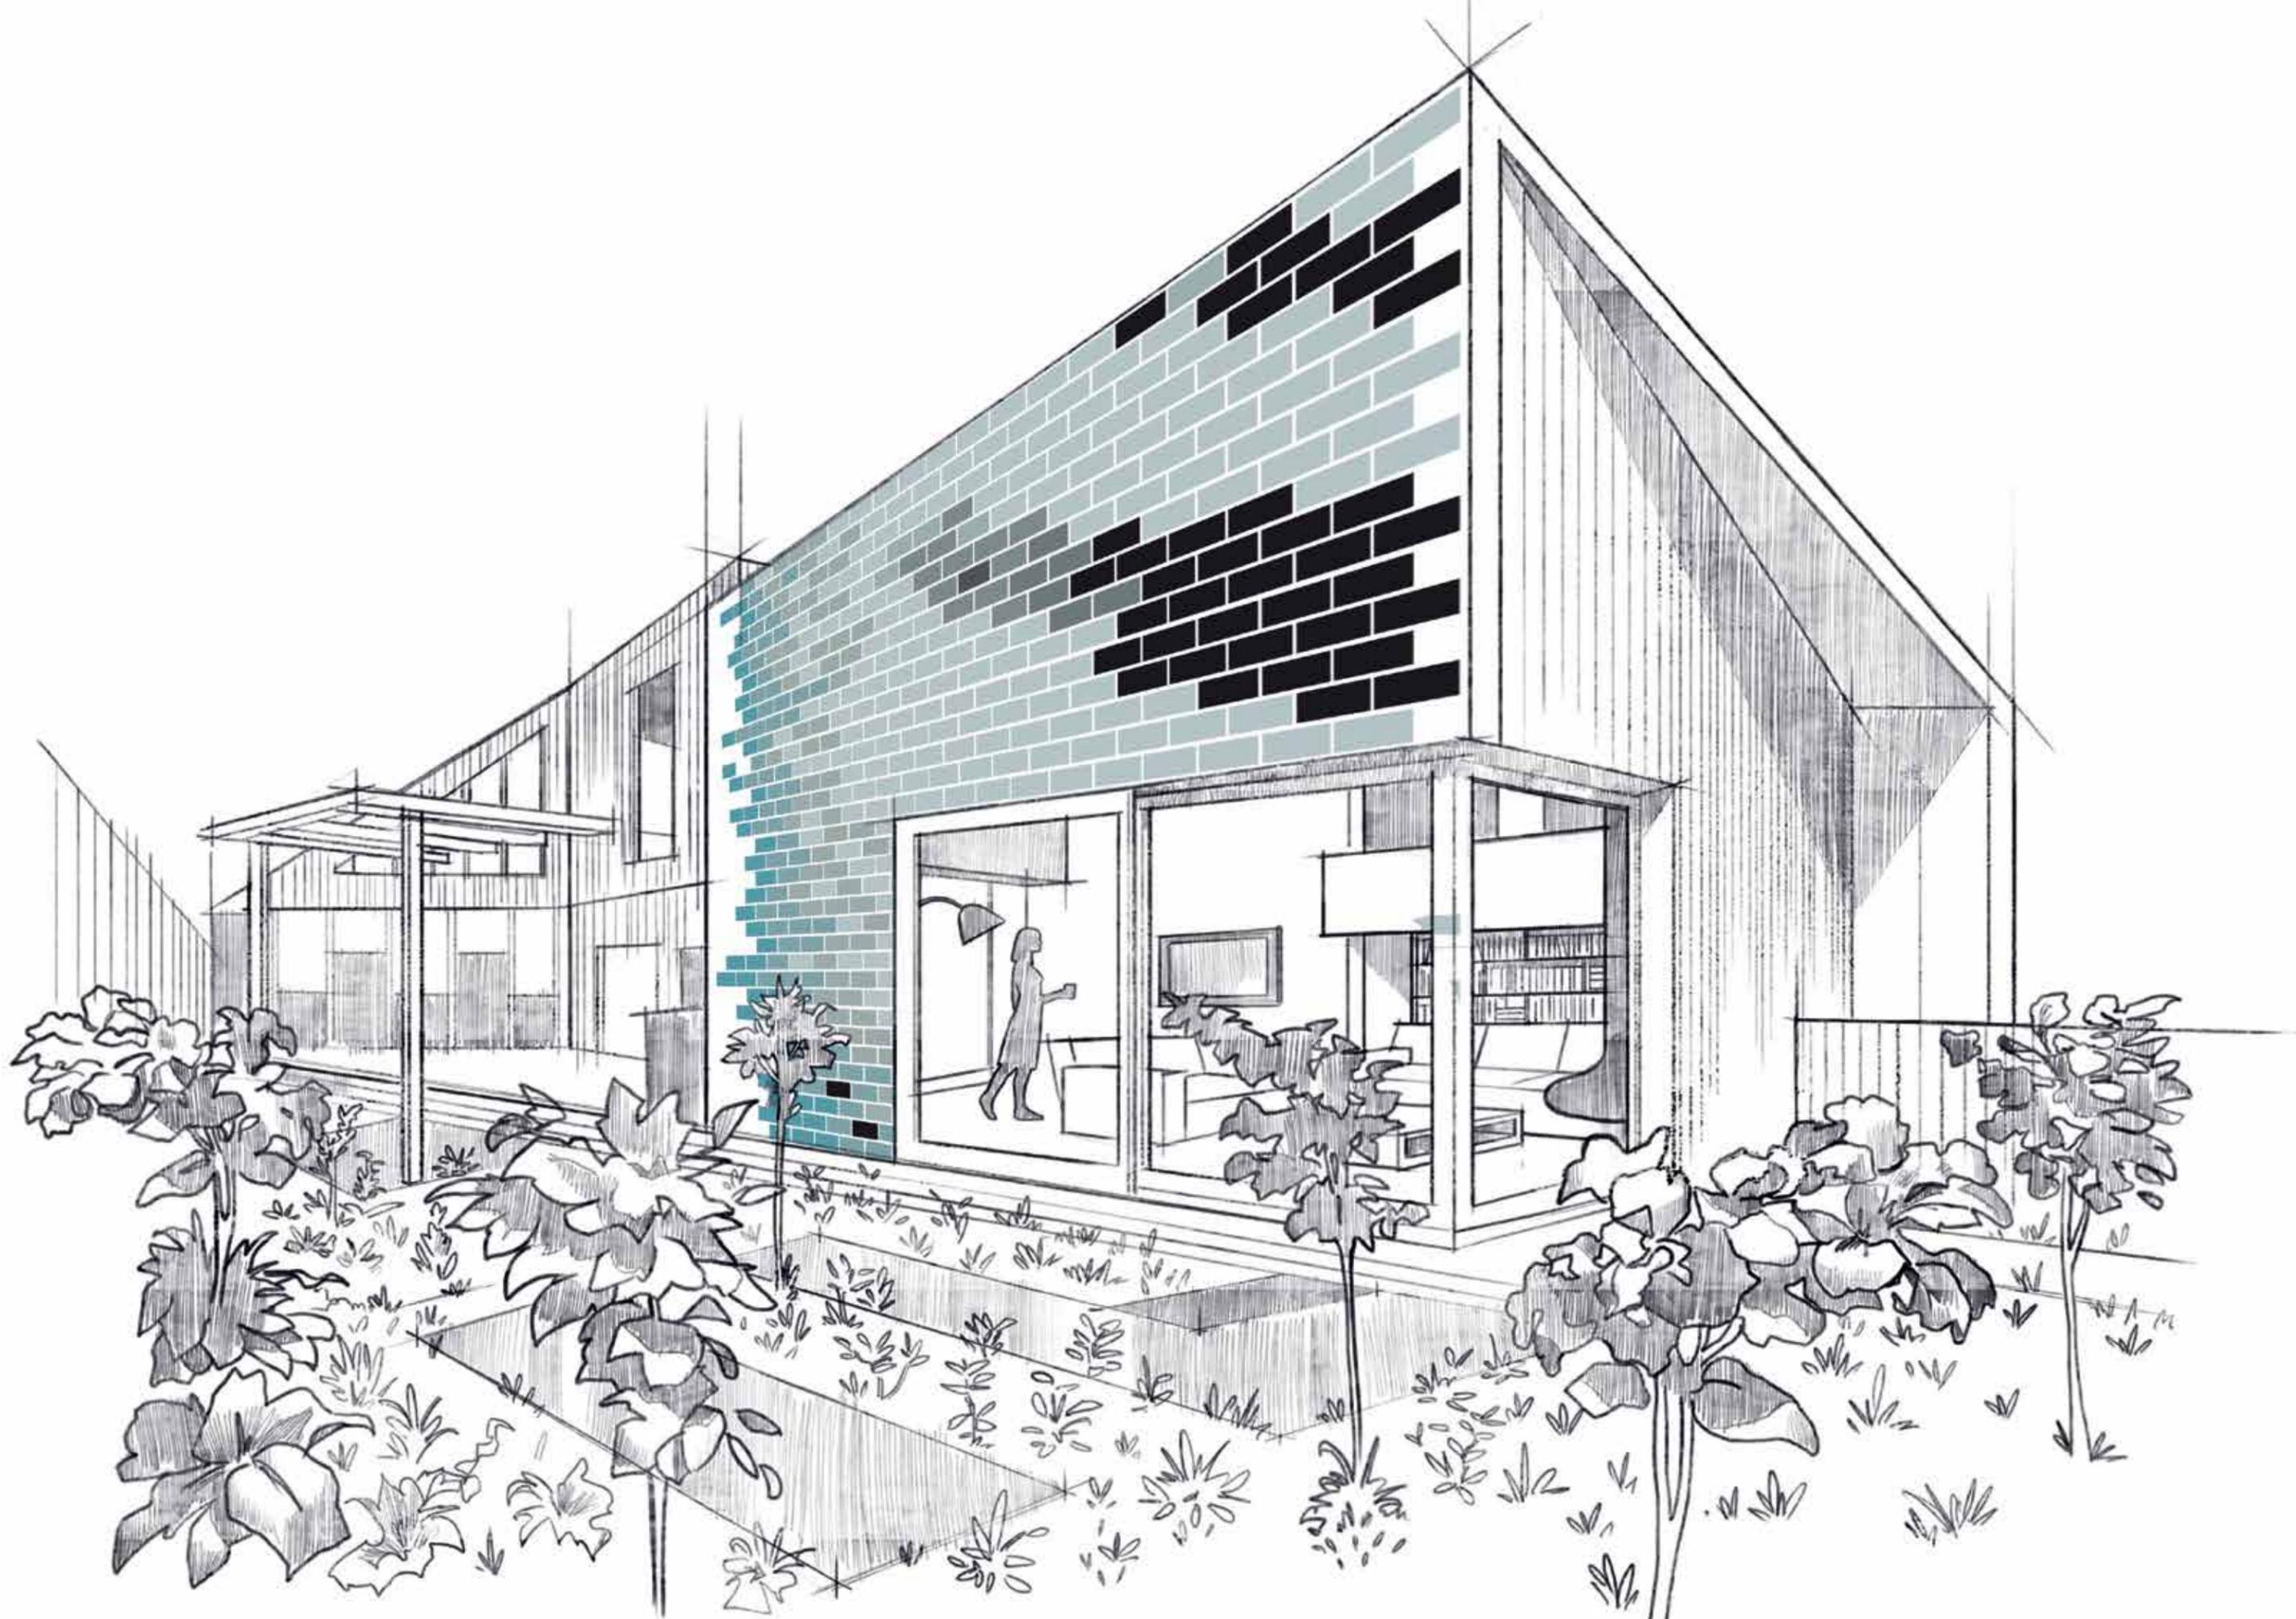

At first glance, the collaboration of a brick company and fashion designer might appear a little unusual. That's what makes it so exciting. At Austral Bricks, we're always looking for new ways to create and challenge how bricks are seen. We wanted to show that, like fashion, its limitations aren't about the material; it's about how far you let your imagination soar.

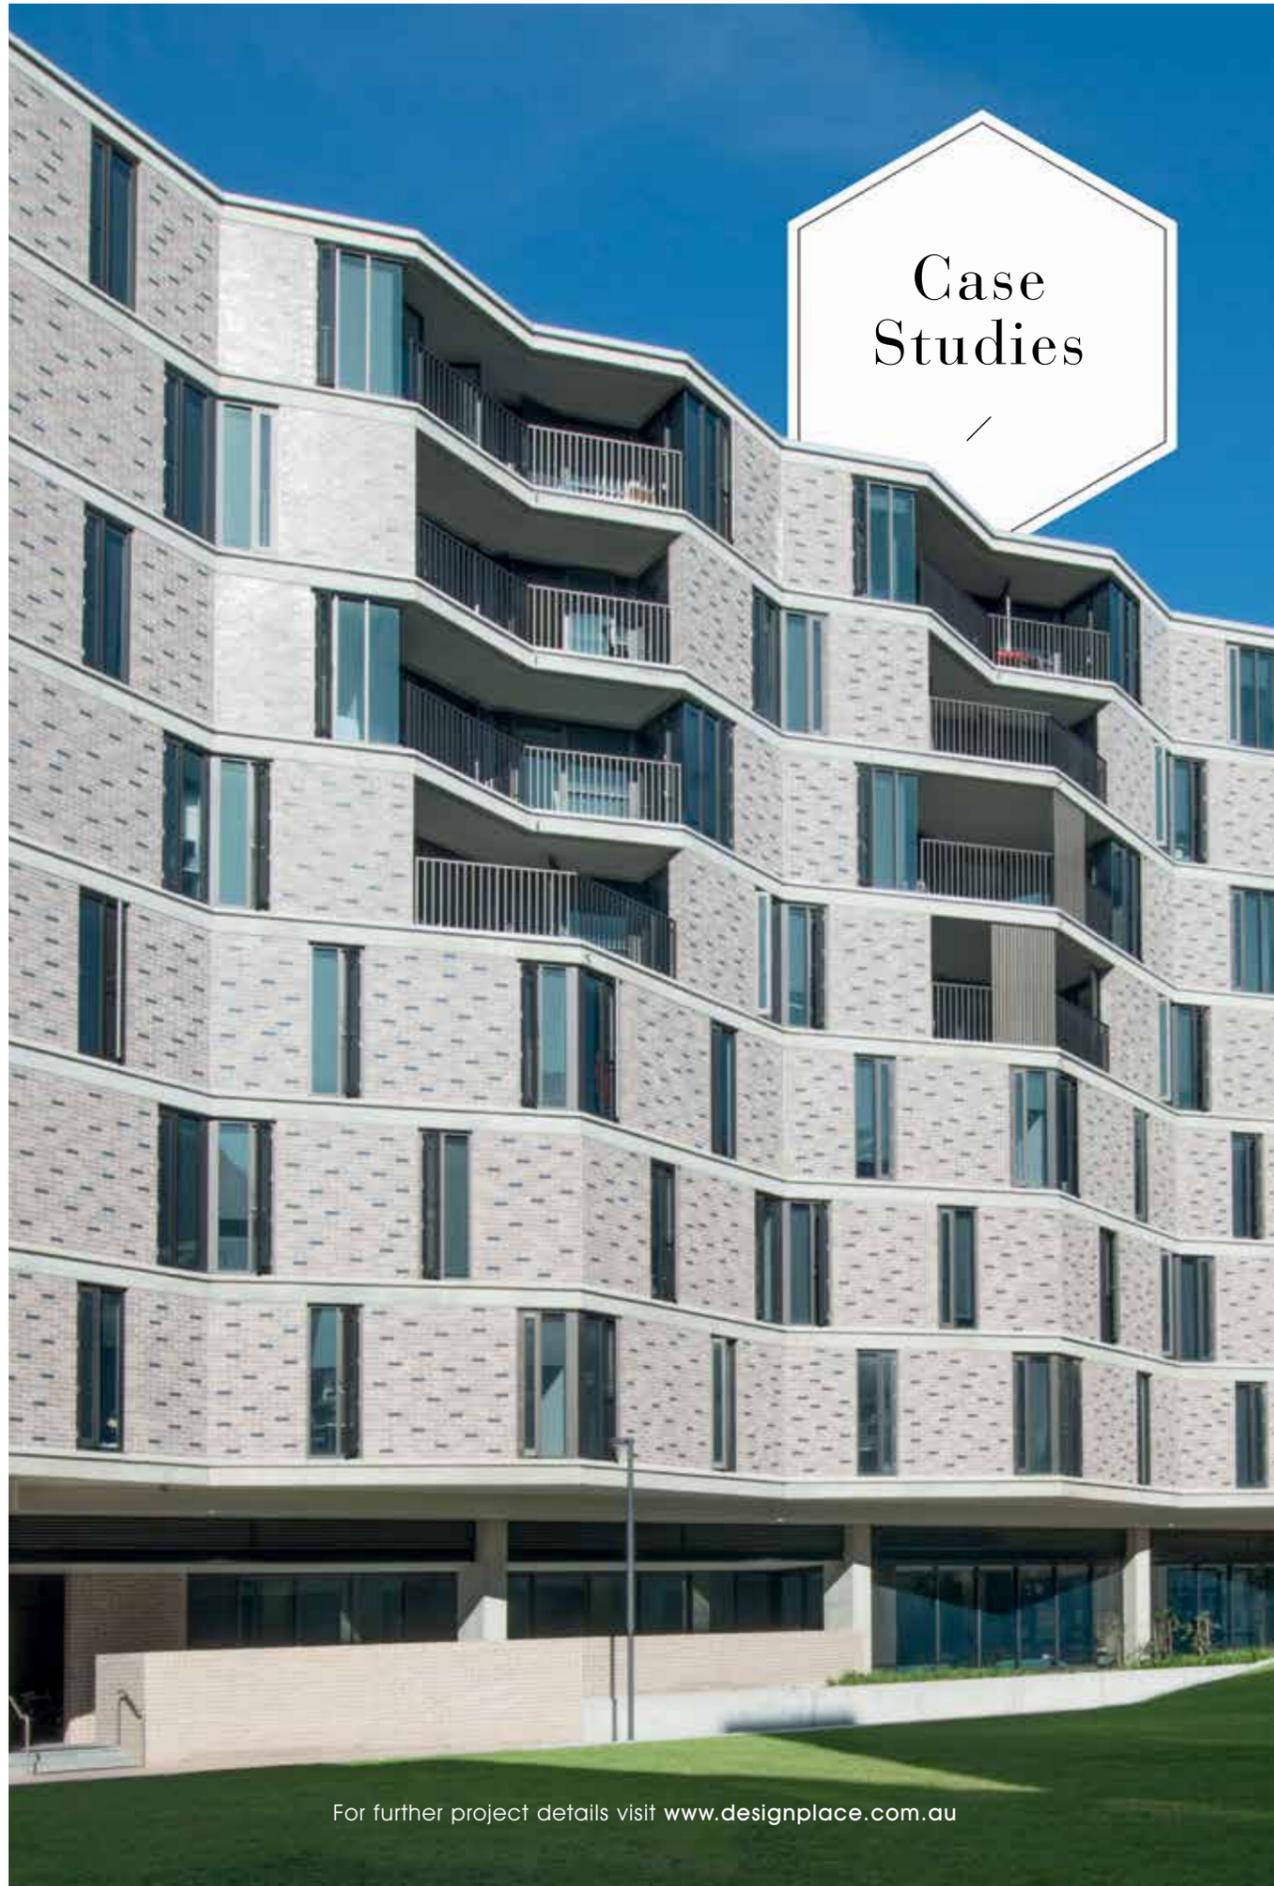

That's why we sought out legendary kaftan designer, Camilla Franks.
With her incredible eye for palette and pattern, she was the perfect choice to reveal bricks' stunning possibilities.

UNSW Kensington Colleges

CASE STUDY

Almost half a million bricks in various blends and glazes. Not one, two, three – or even four – different colours, but twenty. Multi-coloured brickwork has always breathed life into walls, but when it came to building the five new residence halls at the University of New South Wales, these statistics took it to a whole new level. Despite the sheer volume and colour ways, the bricks work together beautifully, creating a subtle identity for each college while keeping in harmony with the entire campus. Beauty and brains, built together.

Featured bricks:

Burlesque™ colours:
Chilling black,
Indulgent white

Claremont House

CASE STUDY

Renovating and extending this Federation-style home in a very contemporary way may surprise many, but the results speak for themselves. Playing on the elements of light and shade, the high-gloss black and softly glazed white bricks create a stunning counterpoint inside and outside the new extension. As you move your eyes across the surface, the bricks seem to shimmer and glow in the natural light, adding a new dimension. Traditional with a twist, these bricks make Claremont House a standout.

Darius Wells Library

／
CASE STUDY

With their studiously quiet interiors, library exteriors have traditionally reflected their inner workings. Today, things have changed on the outside, and the new Darius Wells Library is a fantastic example of what can be achieved with a little imagination (and a lot of bricks). With their glazed finish and simple patterning in multiple sections, each glossy brick adds up to create a lively, welcoming feel that encourages visitors, not bore them away with blandness. Strong, dynamic and bold, the Darius Wells Library wears its true colours on the outside.
